

ABSTRACT

In a planar structural element made from metal that is used particularly for filtration, a metal fibre thread is worked 5 between the metal wire. Whereas the metal wire provides the planar structural element with sufficient sturdiness, metal fibre thread is an excellent material for depth filtration. The metal wire is preferably woven together with the metal fibre thread to form a cloth, wherein the metal fibre 10 thread is the weft and the metal wire the warp.

0001A57